RE: Tribal Consultation on the Proposed Revisions to the Federal Acknowledgement as an Indian Tribe Process

Dear Assistant Secretary Washburn:

We have received the proposed revisions to the process for determining whether a group should be acknowledged as an Indian tribe by the United States. The proposed rule includes a list of dates, locations and times for the Department to consult with tribal governments. We are concerned that this schedule does not include a location in Southern California.

This is a historically important endeavor. The process and standards that the federal government uses to determine tribal and individual Indian identity have great meaning to established Indian tribes, as well as those who seek federal acknowledgement. As you know, tribes in Southern California have raised serious concerns with changes to the rule that would water down the standards that a petitioning group must meet to demonstrate tribal and individual Indian identity.

We write to respectfully request that you add a location in Southern California to your formal consultation schedule with tribal governments on the federal acknowledgement regulations. This would give tribal leaders from this area of the country a better opportunity to have our voices heard and our concerns addressed.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Lynn Valbuena
